INGTON FORESTRY. Billes of Beautiful Shade Trees -Garfield's Memorial Acada Thuddens Stevens' Glant of the Forest—Trees Planted by Distinguished Men.

The glory and pride of Washington is the forest of magnificent shade trees that enfolds the entire city in its arhoreal arms. There are $3,000 shade trees in Washington. If placed ten feet apart there would be enough to shade a double boulevard with four rows of trees, extending from this city

WHAT WE OWE TO JEFFERSON. To Thomas Jefferson is the city di-rectly indebted for the inception of the idea to make Washington the vast park that it is. It was he who planted the first trees and inspired the people with a love for forestry which has been cerefully fostered, and the beneficial results of which are now apparent in the work of the Parking Commission There are 83,000 monuments to his memory studding the streets and nues-green, growing monuments that in summer reach their umbrageous arms to the wanton breezes and flick their cool shadows across the hot asphalted streets. It is said his favorite tree was the widow oak, many of which are now standing that were planted by his own

LINED WITH WILLOW OAKS, The Parking Commission intend with the permission of the Secretary of the Treasury, to line with willow oaks both sides of the street just south of the Treasury building, running from Fifteenth street to the entrance of the Executive Mansion The trees are of sufficient size now to be placed there. They were reared in the city nursery for the express purpose of forming a Jefferson a beautiful memorial to the father of forestry in Washington.

There are a number of memorial trees in the city, trees planted by some persons noted in the history of the country and which bear names.

THADDEUS STEVENS' TREE. In the centre of Lincoln Park monster giant of the forest spreads its branches. It was planted by direction of the great commoner, Thaddens Sievens, originally on the banks of the Tiber, at the foot of Capitol Hill, and subsequently removed to the park. It is the handsomest tree in the city of that species, which Alexander the Great watered with wine, under which Socrates is said to have taught wisdom to the Greek youth and a species which Curator Smith says is destined to make the grandest shade trees America boasts —the Oriental plane tree.

Down in the Botanical Gardens are many memorial trees. They are scattered around through the gardens, but Curator Smith knows where they are and points them out to the inquisit've

GARPIELD'S MASONIC ACACIA. Here is Garfield's Memorial Masonic Acacia. At the funeral ceremonies of the dead President the Masons, in celebrating their rites, used a slip of acacia, Afterwards it was brought here and planted in the gardens, where it is growing rapidly. Near the eastern entrance is a splendd specimen of the "Great Overcup Oak," nearly five feet in circumference. It has grown from an acorn, brought from Kentucky in 1863, and planted there by John J. Crittenden, dedicating it a memorial to his efforts in trying to secure peace between the North and South. His friend, Robert Mallory. planted a similar tree at the other end

Senator Beck's tree is a little Ameriing a slip from the old elm which was planted by George Washington at the east end of the Old Capitol. There are about twenty "Washington elms" throughout the city sprung from the roots of this parent tree.

were almost inseparable friends and were always together. One day they went over to the Botanical Gardens and planted two cypress trees, one on each side of the walk leading to the southern entrance. A touching incident is that these two trees in growing up leaned toward each other until now their branches almost interlace as though typical of the close relations etween the two men. Near the northeast corner of the green house is a cypress eighty feet high and seven feet girth at the base. It was first planted in a flower pot by Warren Brench, the noted North Carolinian, and was transferred to the place it now shelters with its shade.

About twenty years ago Curator Smith was in Indianapolis and the late Vice-President Hendricks gave him a buckeye, which was planted near the we tern entrance and is now a thriving

THE MAIDEN-HAIR TREE.

A tall, spreading tree, with a trunk of light color and beautiful foliage, is called the Japanese Embassy tree, befirst one here twenty years ago. The tree is the gingo, or maiden hair tree, a species never attacked by insects, and this spring the Parking Com mission intend to plant a double row of them on Belmont street, Columbia Heights.

TREES WITH HISTORIES. John Bingham's tree is of the species known as the Europeau hornbeam, short, low, with great spreading branches, the kind of tree that Charles sumner once made such an eloquent appeal in a speech to have preserved. The lawns of the home of the poet Vol-taire in Chatenay were studded with

The hardy Crimean fir, known as Judge Holman's tree, is typical almost of that rugged statesman. planted twenty years ago, and is now a rigorous tree, straight as an arrow. Ex-Secretary Bayard's little oak, planted four years ago, is now making some pretensions to being a tree. It is a rare species, and holds a conspicuous place in the Gardeus. A slender Japanese variety is the Garland memorial tree, planted seven years ago, before he became Attorney-When ex-President Hayes was here as a Congressman, and was chairman of the Library Committee, he strolled over to the Gardens one day and planted a slip from a very rare oak, the only known species of which in this country is on Clifton Heights, in Cincinnati. It is now getting along finely, There are other trees in the Gardens bearing the names of their planters— Proctor Knott, Senator Voorhees, Francis P. Blair, Senator Blackburn, O. R. Singleton, James H. Pierce and FUSILADE AT A FIRE.

Ten Thousand Cartridges Explode It a Burning Building.

PATERSON, N. J., Feb. 8 .- Washington Hall, which occupied a space of ground on Broadway 400 by 600 feet, was burned to the ground about 2 o'clock this morning. The loss will not fall much short of $300,000. A ball was in progress at the time the fire was discovered, but all the guests got out in safety, some, however, leaving their wraps. The fire originated in the basement of the building, and it was only when the dense smoke made its way into the ball-room that the guests were made aware of their great danger.

The building was three stories high, the first floor being occupied as offices and stores. The armory of the First Battalion, N. G. N. J., and the ballcom were situated on the second floor The lodge-rooms of the Ivanhoe F. and A. M. were on the top floor.

In the upper part of the building were also the sleeping apartments of the janitor, William Smith, and his wife, both of whom had narrow escapes from suffocation, the latter being carried out in an unconscious state.

The fire, it is now said, was caused by an explosion in the soda water manufactory of Messrs. Swinley in the rear end of the building.
About 2:40, when the flames were at their highest, a rapid fire of musketry took place, frightening every one away from the building. This was caused by the ignition of 10,000 rounds of cart idges in the armory. The fusilade was kept up for some time, sending the bul-lets in all directions, but no one was

The flames spread to a large three story building adjoining, which was entirely destroyed, and entailing a loss to a number of families who lived there of $20,000. Peter Owens' house Day's confectionery and Dowd's pho tographic establishment were also burned out. In the hall building the Board of Trade rooms, with their valuable library and documents, were completely destroyed. In the armory were 300 rifles and accourrements, all belonging to the State and these with a Gattling gun were burned up. The only one injured, so far as known, was James Lindsay, a fireman of engine No. 6, who was thrown off a roof and severely injured.

The hall was owned by Katz Brothers. It will be rebuilt. The large bottling factory and residence of the Boyle brothers, on Fair street, were destroyed. The Von Blarcom flats were not destroyed, although the building was several times on fire

People in the vicinity moved their goods out of their houses, and for a time excitement ran very high Washington Hall was the largest publihall in the city and the seventh larges in the United States.

SEVENTY STUBBORN ROUNDS.

Dixon and McCarthy Fighting to Draw in Boston.

Boston, Feb. 8.-The fight tast night between Dixon and McCarthy, at the Union Athletic Club-rooms, ended in a draw, after seventy stubbornly-contested rounds. Both men entered the ring at 8:02 o'clock, each stripping at 1144 pounds and looking in perfect condition. Dixon was seconded by Tom O'Rourke, Tom McGeough and Danny Gunn, and McCarthy by Tom Collins, Jack O'Hara and Chappy Moran, with Al. Smith of New York as referee. Three-ounce gloves were used Dixon at once made a pass for Mc-Carthy, which the latter countered, and the round was used up in in-effective attempts to land. In the next seven rounds McCarthy did the leading and the advantage was clearly in his favor.

In the fifth round McCarthy landed on Dixon's nose, drawing first blood, but Dixon took his revenge in the seventh, when by a stunning left-hander on McCarthy's nose he brought the latter down. From the ninth to the twen ty-third round the tide turned some what in Dixon's favor, and McCarthy dropped to the floor several times to avoid his blows. For the balance of the fight neither appeared to show much superiority, although Dixon's square fighting was in marked contrast to Mc-Carthy's style of running about the ring. In many of the rounds during the fight not a blow was struck.

Dixon's work throughout pleased the 500 or 600 spectators more than Mc-Carthy's. He usually landed his blows on McCarthy's face and neck, while McCarthy seemed to go for his op-ponent's wind. McCarthy forced Dixon upon the ropes many times, but the referee allowed no foul. Me-Carthy's left eye was closed and his mouth and face swollen, but Dixoa showed only a little swelling under the left eye at the close. Otherwise the men appeared in good condition. In the seventieth round the referee, in response to the demands of the crowd, de-clared the fight a draw.

JOHN SMITH Is the happiest man that I But wasn't he blue, though, not three months ago? "My wife's running down just as fast as is. I don't just understand it, because I'm not a woman, but her back pained her, and she complained of dragging-down feelings and a general weakness, and I know that she had some of those diseases women are subject to, and had 'em bad, too. I read about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription one day, and the first time I was at the drug store I bought a bottle of it and took home to her. It worked wonders. In a short time she said she felt like another woman, and she began to hope that there was relief for her, after all. She kept on taking the medicine for a time, and now she's well. Get a bottle of the 'Prescription' and try it on your wife."

"I will," said Smith. And he did, and it cured her, and that's why he's so happy to-

It is now universally conceded by even the most fanatical teetotalers that a glass of thoroughly matured and pure wine is the most wholesome, health and strength-giving beverage for mankind. Almost every State—no matter how cold its climate—produces grapes from which wine is pressed, but THE PASADENA WINES are made from those luscious SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA grapes which attain the highest grade of maturity and ripeness and are therefore the best wines in the market.
